THE de GRUMMOND COLLECTION

The Lena Y. de Grummond Collection of Children's Literature is a major center for study and research. The Collection, which holds original materials as well as published works, is housed on the fourth floor of the William D. McCain Library on the USM campus.

The de Grummond Collection has over 26,000 volumes, including over 7,000 volumes published before 1915. Researchers will discover interesting examples of chapbooks, battledores, magazines, toy books, primers, table games and courtesy books. The Collection is especially strong in its holdings of Kate Greenaway, George Henty, Aesop and other fabulists, and books for teenage boys.

Original materials for contemporary children's books constitute a very important segment of the collection. These materials include manuscripts and typescripts, illustrations and color separations, galleys and page proofs, dummies, notes, and correspondence. Over 1,060 authors and illustrators, including Marcia Brown, Barbara Cooney, Roger Duvoisin, Berta & Elmer Hader, Nonny Hogrogian, Madeleine L'Engle, Lois Lenski, Maud & Miska Petersham, Kate Seredy, and Lynd Ward, are represented in the Collection.

The de Grummond Collection is probably most noted for and possesses one of the world's largest collections of original illustrations by Kate Greenaway. The Collection has almost 300 illustrations by Miss Greenaway, including over forty pencil sketches and drawings for A APPLE PIE.

JEAN CRAIGHEAD GEORGE

The eighteenth recipient of the University of Southern Mississippi Medallion was born in Washington, D.C., on July 2, 1919, to Frank and Carolyn Craighead. Her father, a professional entomologist in the Department of Agriculture, influenced Jean and her twin brothers, now ecologists, to become quite interested in science, nature, and wildlife at an early age.

Jean attended college at Pennsylvania State University and received the B.A. degree in 1941. She has also studied at Louisiana State University and the University of Michigan. Jean married John Lothar George in 1944 and their three children are Carolyn Laura, John Craighead, and Thomas Lothar.

During World War II, Jean served as a reporter for the International News Service and the Washington Post. After the War, she was employed as an art editor for Pageant Magazine and as a reporter-artist for the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Jean began her book-writing career in 1948 with Vulpes the Red Fox, published by Dutton. Between 1948 and 1956, Jean and her husband collaborated on Vulpes and five other titles, all published by Dutton. One of these books was Dipper of Copper Creek, which in 1958 became the first recipient of the Aurianne Award of the American Library Association. Dipper of Copper Creek was cited for its "humane attitude toward animals."

The publication of My Side of the Mountain in 1959 marked Jean George's emergence as a major writer of nature stories for young people. It has received many notable awards including being recognized as a John Newbery Honor Book for 1960, named to the prestigious Lewis Carroll Shelf in 1965 and cited as the winner of the George G. Stone Center Recognition of Merit Award for 1969. My Side of the Mountain was made into a color feature film in 1969 by Paramount, starring Ted Eccles and Theodore Bikel.

During the 1960s, Jean George continued to write stories for children, such as "Gull Number 737" and "Hold Zero!" She also taught school in Chappaqua, New York. Between 1967 and 1969, she wrote every title in the praised "The Thirteen Moons" series, published by Crowell. For all of her accomplishments, Pennsylvania State named Jean George "Woman of the Year" in 1969.

The publication of "Red Robin Fly Up!" in 1963 began a long association with Reader's Digest. Jean was a staff writer for Reader's Digest from 1969 to 1974 and served as a roving editor from 1974 to 1980.

Jean C. George published twelve books in the 1970s, including her most famous title to date, Julie of the Wolves (1972). This book was named the winner of the John Newbery Medal for 1973 and was a finalist for the National Book Award. Julie of the Wolves is an exciting and detailed story which accurately depicts the conflicts between civilized man and nature. Over the years, countless numbers of young people as well as adults have thoroughly enjoyed and learned from Julie of the Wolves. Another title by Jean from the 1970s, All Upon a Stone, illustrated by Don Bolognese, was the 1971 Picture Book winner of the Spring Book Festival Awards. In 1970, the American Nature Study Society recognized the significant accomplishments of Jean George by bestowing upon her the Eva L. Gordon Award.

Into the 1980s, Jean has continued to write highly successful books. Her autobiography, Journey Inward, was published by Dutton in 1982. How to Talk to Your Animals is her latest title, published by Harcourt in 1985. Jean Craighead George has continued to receive major recognition for her significant contributions to children's literature. She was the third recipient of the School Library Media Specialists of South Eastern New York Award for 1981 and the following year received the coveted Kerlan Award from the University of Minnesota.

Jean C. George has written and/or illustrated over fifty books in her distinguished writing career. Besides writing, she enjoys painting, poetry, field trips to universities and laboratories of natural science, modern dance, whitewater canoeing, and raising wild animals. For many years, she has resided in Chappaqua (Westchester County), New York.

Robert Quackenbush, internationally known artist, teacher, author, and illustrator of numerous children's books, believes that "everyone has a unique story to present and to share with children . . . whether it is told with pictures or with words or both." His self-illustrated books for children include CLEMENTINE, GO TELL AUNT RHODY and the critically acclaimed POEMS FOR GALLOPING, which received the 1963 American Institute of Graphic Arts Fifty Best Books award. Mr. Quackenbush is a three-time winner of the American Flag Institute Award for his outstanding contribution to the field of children's literature, and he also received an Edgar Allen Poe Special Award for the best juvenile mystery of 1981. He has illustrated the writings of numerous classic authors, such as Hans Christian Andersen (THE STEADFAST TIN SOLDIER), Herman Melville, (BILLY BUDD, FORETOPSMAN) Oscar Wilde (THE SELFISH GIANT and LITTLE HANS, which was awarded the Society of Illustrators citation), Stephen Crane (THE OPEN BOAT), and James Fenimore Cooper (THE PILOT, which also received a Society of Illustrators citation). Mr. Quackenbush is best known, however, for his many illustrated children's books by contemporary authors, including Irma Black (BUSY SEEDS and BUSY WINDS), Jane Yolen (WIZARD ISLANDS), Georgess McHargue (THE BAKER AND THE BASLISK, a Junior Literary Guild selection), and Miriam B. Young (BILLY AND MILLY, BEWARD THE POLAR BEAR, and the "IF I . . ." series).

Since 1961, Mr. Quackenbush has worked as a free-lance painter, illustrator, and writer. His art work has been exhibited in leading museums of the United States, including the Whitney and the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts. In New York, where he makes his home with his wife Margery, he teaches classes at his own Robert Quackenbush Gallery. There he encourages the awakening of storytelling in the art of his students: "It is truly exciting to watch people discover their childhood worlds again."

Peggy Parish is best known for her popular "Amelia Bedelia" series for primary readers. A native of Manning, South Carolina, where she lives today, Ms. Parish was educated at the University of South Carolina and at Peabody College. Her love of children has been fostered by a long teaching career. Beginning in 1948 she taught English in the Oklahoma panhandle country and in the Kentucky coal mining region before moving to New York City, where she taught for many years at the Dalton School before trying her hand at writing. Asked about her writing career, Peggy Parish says "Children have always been my life, so writing stories for children came naturally. I do have special feelings about writing for children. I don't try to teach anything in my stories I write just for fun." Among her most acclaimed children's books are AMELIA BEDELIA, COME BACK AMELIA BEDELIA, HAUNTED HOUSE, and GRANNY AND THE DESPERADOS.

A member of the Author's Guild, Ms. Parish is currently a children's book reviewer on the "Carolina Today" television show at an NBC affiliate station in Columbia, South Carolina. She also runs a children's book review service.

Jane Yolen, author of the critically acclaimed Pit Dragon Trilogy that includes DRAGON'S BLOOD, HEART'S BLOOD, and the soon-to-be published A SENDING OF DRAGONS, has written over 60 works, including contemporary fairy tales, poems, essay collections, and adult novels. Her magical books for young people have won numerous awards including the 1973 Lewis Carroll Shelf Award for THE GIRL WHO LOVED THE WIND; in 1974 she was a National Book Award finalist for THE GIRL WHO CRIED FLOWERS. More recently, the suspenseful fantasy DRAGON'S BLOOD, called by School Library Journal "a fascinating glimpse of a brand new world," was an ALA Best Book for Young Adults in 1982. Ms. Yolen's concern with "revitalizing the art of storytelling" is evident with the presence of magic and myth in her writings, and she has been recognized for her ability to combine the allure of dragon lore with the complexities of politics. Reared in a home where both reading and writing were nurtured, Jane Yolen began writing at an early age and believes in encouraging aspiring young authors to "write as much as you can because you have to write." Ms. Yolen now lives in Hatfield, Massachusetts, where, she says, "Dragons still exist".

In the South and Southwest, Dr. Joy Lowe is well known for her storytelling and puppetry. A former public and school librarian, she has been a university professor for nine years and presently serves as Associate Professor of Library Science at Louisiana Tech University, specializing in young adult literature and microcomputers in school libraries. The mother of one son and two daughters, Dr. Lowe is past president of the Louisiana Library Association and an active member of the American Library Association.

Jill May is a storyteller in the field of children's literature. Mrs. May's career has progressed from a children's librarian at Madison Public Library to associate professor at Purdue University. She received her B.A. in English from Wisconsin State University and an M.S.L.S. from the University of Wisconsin.

The Delta Kappa Pi Best Teacher Award was presented to Mrs. May in 1984. Presently, she is serving on the Board of Children's Literature Division of MLA and the Visual Arts Committee and Teacher's Education Council at Purdue.

As a storyteller, Mrs. May has demonstrated her skills at such events as the "Feast of the Hunter's Moon" in Lafayette, Indiana, and the "Rally for Old Tippecanoe" in Battleground, Indiana. Mrs. May coordinates and conducts workshops in the area of children's literature.

Presently, Mrs. May resides in West Lafayette, Indiana, with her husband, Robert, and their two children, Heather and Beth.
